

Summary of the RAD:

The Rapid Application Development (RAD) model is a software development methodology focused on quick, iterative delivery, designed to adapt to changing requirements.

- when requirements are well-understood and can be modularized.
- For projects with tight deadlines and a need for rapid development.
- Delivers a product closely aligned with user needs and expectations.
- Improved quality through continuous feedback and early testing.
- Heavy reliance on ongoing customer involvement.